The current situation

Gaza faces a dire humanitarian crisis, worsened by the Israel-Hamas war. The 139-square-mile territory was already in crisis, with 95% lacking clean water and over half reliant on international aid. The conflict caused widespread destruction, displacing 1.5 million, leading to shortages of food, fuel, water, and medicine, along with crowded shelters. Hospitals lack critical supplies, and the Red Cross deems it a "humanitarian catastrophe." Israel's blockade has worsened food insecurity, with 78% of piped water unsafe. Civilians urgently need food, water, medical care, and fuel. Global appeals for a cease-fire and aid persist.
